The fund's general meeting may, through a separate decision with a 3-month deadline, allow the insurance relationship for individuals employed by a shareholder who have not previously joined as insured.

The insurance relationship is voluntary for those individuals employed by a shareholder who were not previously within the operational scope of the fund and who are in employment at the time these rules come into effect. They must join as insured within 3 months of the rules coming into effect.

Upon the commencement of the insurance relationship, the insured individual will be sent a copy of the fund's rules to their email address.

Insured individuals will be informed of the statutory provisions and any changes on the fund's website.

WITHDRAWAL FROM THE FUND AND TERMINATION

An insured individual is considered to have withdrawn from the fund, and the insurance relationship automatically terminates when the insured individual ceases to belong to the fund's operational scope.

An insured individual cannot be dismissed from the fund.

No insurance premium is deducted from the holiday compensation and holiday allowance payable upon the termination of employment.

The minimum and maximum amounts of the insurance premium for an insured individual are tied to the wage coefficient referred to in Sections 96, 97, and 100 of the Employees Pensions Act (395/2006), in such a way that the euro amounts in this section correspond to a wage coefficient of 1.558. No insurance premium is deducted for unpaid sick leave or parental leave.

Upon application, the fund's board can exempt an insured individual from the obligation to pay the insurance premium during a long-term foreign assignment. During the period of exemption, the insured individual is not entitled to benefits under Sections 14-14a of these rules.

The insurance premium for a shareholder is equal to the total insurance premiums paid by the employed insured individuals of the fund.

The shareholder deducts the insurance premium from the insured individual's salary during the payment of wages. The insurance premiums are remitted to the fund at least once a month.

The insurance premium for a shareholder is remitted to the fund at the same time as the corresponding installment of insurance premiums for the insured individuals.

If the financial situation of the fund so requires, the fund's board may reduce or increase the insurance premiums of the shareholders and adjust the minimum and maximum amounts of the insured individuals' insurance premiums by the wage coefficient by up to 30 percent. The consent of the shareholder must be obtained before implementing any changes to the premiums. However, a change in premiums lasting more than six months must be implemented through an amendment to the rules.

14 a §

The costs incurred from operation performed to prevent the insured individual's disability and improve their work and earning capacity can be fully or partially reimbursed if deemed reasonable by the board or, with authorization from the board, by the fund's medical expert together with the CEO, on a case-by-case basis and if they are not otherwise reimbursable according to §14. Additionally, reimbursement is subject to the presentation of a B medical certificate obtained from occupational health services or other equivalent documentation demonstrating the necessity of the operation.

The prerequisite for the payment of compensation according to these rules is that:

1. The examination has been performed or the treatment has been provided by a doctor or another appropriately trained individual registered in the central register of professional practitioners maintained by the National Supervisory Authority for Welfare and Health (Valvira); or
2. The examination or treatment conducted in private healthcare has taken place in a private healthcare unit as defined in the Private Healthcare Act (152/1990).

Necessary treatment and examinations are considered to be medically accepted disease management practices in accordance with good medical practice. A doctor's prescription must be obtained prior to the reimbursable event. The prescription entitles the individual to compensation for a period of one year from the date of issuance. A maximum of 15 examination or treatment sessions is covered by a single prescription if the examination or treatment has been conducted within one year of the prescription's issuance.
Treatment provided abroad is reimbursed up to the amount that would have been payable if the treatment had been provided in Finland. Travel expenses to foreign countries are not reimbursed.

The fund provides the benefits defined in Sections 14-14a only to the extent that they exceed the corresponding benefits obtainable under the Health Insurance Act. If a member of the fund is entitled to receive compensation under any other Finnish law besides the Health Insurance Act, compensation is only paid to the extent that it exceeds the compensation payable under the other law. Similarly, if a member is entitled to receive compensation under legislation other than Finnish, the relevant compensation may be taken into account wholly or partially at the discretion of the board when determining the fund's compensation.

The fund's liability regarding additional benefits begins from the commencement of the insurance relationship and ends upon the termination of the insurance relationship. The fund only reimburses costs incurred during the insurance relationship. The reimbursement of hospital daily fees ceases upon the expiration of the maximum period specified in Section 14, subsection 14.1, or, if the insured transitions to old-age pension prior to that, upon the commencement of the old-age pension, provided that the hospital treatment has commenced before the termination of the insurance relationship.

Costs are deemed to be incurred when the treatment is provided and the examination is conducted. When considering the annual maximum amounts of compensation, the basis for reimbursement is determined based on the time of treatment, regardless of when the costs were paid.

RESTRICTIONS ON ADDITIONAL BENEFITS

If the insured is absent from work without pay due to a work stoppage, lack of work-related reasons, or any other reason other than illness or parental leave, the additional benefits under Sections 14-14a of these rules will not be paid for the relevant period.

If the insured, after the occurrence of the insured event, fraudulently provides the fund with false or incomplete information that is relevant to the receipt or amount of an additional benefit, the entitlement to the benefit may be denied or reduced to a reasonable extent based on the circumstances.

The fund is not liable for additional benefits to an insured person who intentionally caused the insured event.

If the insured person has caused the insured event due to gross negligence, the entitlement to the additional benefit may be denied, reduced, or the payment of the granted benefit may be suspended to a reasonable extent based on the circumstances.

The same applies if the insured person has intentionally impeded their recovery or, without a justifiable reason, has refused to undergo an examination or treatment prescribed by the fund's appointed doctor, except for procedures posing a serious health risk.

Before denying or reducing the benefit or suspending the payment of the granted benefit, the insured person must be heard, and their conduct in the matter and the amount of the benefit already paid must be taken into consideration.

The board has the right to determine which service provider is to be used when it comes to treatment eligible for additional compensation under these rules.

The insured person is obliged, at the expense of the fund, to visit the doctor appointed by the board or a healthcare or research facility designated by the board for the purpose of investigating the compensation matter.

If the insured person does not comply with the provisions of the first or second paragraph, the compensation may be denied, either in whole or in part.

APPLYING FOR ADDITIONAL BENEFITS

Additional benefits according to these rules must be applied for in writing. The application must be accompanied by any necessary documentation deemed necessary.

Compensation must be applied for within six months from the date the payment for which compensation is sought has been made. Despite the delay, the benefit may be granted, either in whole or in part, if the denial is considered unreasonable.

Benefit applications must be processed urgently. The provisions of Section 8 of Chapter 6 of the Insurance Fund Act regarding delays in benefits apply.

Compensation according to Section 14 of these rules may be paid in full if the receipt of compensation under the Health Insurance Act or other legislation is delayed due to reasons beyond the insured person's control, and if the insured person agrees to repay the fund an amount equivalent to the compensation paid by the fund.

If the insured person has received more additional benefits under these rules than they were entitled to, any unjustified benefits paid must be recovered. The recovery of unjustified additional benefits must adhere to good debt collection practices.

The recovery may be waived, either in whole or in part, if it is deemed reasonable and the payment of the benefit was not due to the actions of the insured person or another beneficiary, or if the amount unjustifiably paid is negligible.

The recoverable amount may be offset against future additional benefits paid by the fund if the insured person or another beneficiary agrees to it.

The board of the fund must establish procedural guidelines for these situations to ensure consistent treatment of the insured persons.

APPEALING AN ADDITIONAL BENEFIT DECISION

A person dissatisfied with the fund's decision regarding additional benefits may request a recommendation for resolution from the Insurance and Financial Advisory Service. The request for a recommendation for resolution must be submitted to their own fund or the Insurance and Financial Advisory Service within 30 days of the insured person receiving notice of the decision. The insured person is considered to have received notice of the decision on the seventh day following the mailing date of the decision.

A person dissatisfied with the additional benefit decision may also bring the matter to court for resolution. The lawsuit must be filed within three years from the date the person dissatisfied with the benefit decision received written notice of the fund's decision and the three-year time limit. The court of first instance is the general district court of the fund's domicile, which is the Helsinki District Court. The lawsuit can also be considered in the district court within whose jurisdiction the claimant has their domicile or permanent residence.

EQUITY FUNDS

The insurance fund has two types of reserves: the contingency reserve and the operating reserve.

The contingency reserve must be increased annually by at least 20 percent of the surplus indicated in the financial statements, after deducting any deficit from previous fiscal years. When the contingency reserve is equal to or greater than the average premium income for the current fiscal year and the two preceding fiscal years, it is no longer mandatory to transfer funds to the contingency reserve.

The contingency reserve may only be reduced according to a decision made by the insurance fund's assembly, and only for the purpose of covering a confirmed deficit indicated in the balance sheet.

Notwithstanding what is stated in the fourth paragraph, the Financial Supervisory Authority may, upon application and for special reasons, grant permission to the insurance fund to reduce the amount of its contingency reserve, generally not below the full amount of the contingency reserve.

The operating reserve must receive the portion of the surplus that has not been transferred to the contingency reserve.
The operating reserve may be used for:

1. Primarily covering the deficit indicated in the financial statements.
2. Increasing the benefits mentioned in the insurance fund's rules, according to a plan approved by the assembly for a maximum period of one year at a time.
3. Paying the benefits mentioned in the insurance fund's rules for a specified period during unpaid absences, according to a plan made at the discretion of the assembly.

If the operating reserve becomes so large that it exceeds 40 percent of the full amount of the contingency reserve, the insurance fund must take action to either increase the additional benefits according to these rules or reduce the premiums.

LIABILITY PROVISION

The liability provision of the insurance fund consists of the compensation liability, which corresponds to the unpaid amounts of additional benefits and other amounts to be paid due to the occurred insurance events.

The compensation liability is calculated for the financial statements in accordance with the regulations of the Financial Supervisory Authority.

The same requirement applies to the placement of the insurance fund into liquidation and its termination in cases other than those required by law, as well as the approval of an agreement regarding the merger of the insurance fund.

If an amendment to the regulations directly affects the rights or obligations of a shareholder, the amendment's confirmation additionally requires the acceptance of the shareholder. If there are multiple shareholders, the confirmation of the amendment requires that at least two-thirds of all shareholders have accepted it. Furthermore, the accepted votes of the shareholders must represent at least two-thirds of the total voting rights that would exist if all shareholders were represented at the meeting.

A decision concerning a matter in which the procedural rules of the Pension Funds and Pension Funds Act or the provisions regarding the invitation for the meeting in these regulations have not been followed can only be made if the insured individuals and shareholders affected by the omission give their consent.
